

Neil is a partner with Vandeventer Black LLP and focuses his law practice on construction and government contract matters. Neil graduated from the Virginia Military Institute and from the University of Richmond School of Law. He is Martindale-Hubbell "AV Preeminent" and has received various other legal recognitions and honors, including listing in Best Lawyers of America for Construction Law.

Neil has held leadership positions in various construction trade associations. He uses his unique experiences in the construction industry, and as an experienced litigator and negotiator, to facilitate positive solutions for clients. Neil regularly lectures and publishes about construction and government contracting related matters.